We love our dogs and cats and are horrified at the thought of horse slaughter or people in other countries eating dogs and cats; yet, it’s acceptable to eat pigs, chickens and cows. All animals feel joy and they can experience pain and fear. Children naturally love any animal they encounter, but somewhere along the way we are conditioned to separate those we love from those we eat.

“Think occasionally of the suffering of which you spare yourself the sight.”
Albert Schweitzer

What you can do: Select an animal each month to leave off your plate. This will create a state of mind where you are paying attention. Think about the sentient animal at the end of your fork and what they experienced to get there.

Please remember to buy only pasture-raised eggs & to pass this email your mailing list. Thank you! Lois
